BIO :

---

Lisa Montanaro is founder and CEO of Lisa Montanaro Global Enterprises, LLC, which has a proven track record of empowering teams and individuals and igniting productivity since 2002. A dynamo in high heels, Lisa is an accomplished trainer, engaging speaker, certified productivity consultant, and motivating team development and peak performance coach. Her psychology and law background combined with former employment in private sector, public sector, and higher education gives Lisa unique insight into the lives of working professionals.

Before embarking on her journey as a coach, consultant, and speaker on the heels of the 9-11 tragedy, Lisa was a theater performer, an instructor and interpreter at a high school for deaf students, practiced employment and labor relations law in the private and public sectors, and was a law school professor and higher education administrator. Lisa's articles have been published in numerous online and print publications, and she is a frequent guest expert for television, podcasts, webinars, and radio. Known for her combination of warmth, humor, and expertise, Lisa delivers straight talk in a manner that is informative and entertaining. She is the author of the books The Ultimate Life Organizer and DECIDE to be Organized: An Empowering Process for Change.

HOBBIES

---

A born and bred New Yorker now living in Northern California with her veterinarian husband, Lisa is a community theater geek, avid cyclist, serious gardener, voracious reader and persistent writer. She can often be found chasing her spoiled rescue mutts.
